Our Promise

At AseraCare Hospice®, our team provides medical, emotional and spiritual support to individuals with terminal illnesses and their families. Although hospice care is often associated with cancer patients, it is also a resource for people in the final stages of chronic diseases like emphysema, diabetes, Alzheimer's, dementia and more.

Hospice care may be delivered in the person's home or in a hospital, nursing home, assisted living center or hospice facility. Physicians, nurses, medical social workers, pharmacists and other hospice care staff use the latest practices and technologies to manage pain and symptoms, and to create the best quality of life during the last months of life.

Our Approach

We believe that the end of a person's life can be comfortable and peaceful. You and your family are not alone on this journey. Your physician's clinical expertise and our team's experience will support you as you make decisions about care.

AseraCare Hospice understands the challenges that patients and their families face when coping with serious, chronic or life-limiting illnesses. That's why we:

- Help manage physical symptoms and provide the doctor with the clinical information needed to oversee the patient's care
- Help families and patients understand the many emotions they will experience during this difficult time
- Give one-on-one attention to patients, sharing the valuable gift of time
- Support the patient's spiritual beliefs and assist in meeting spiritual end-of-life needs
- Stay in touch with families for 13 months as they grieve their loss after a loved one's death

When Hospice Can Help

Often times, full-time caregivers and family are the first to notice changes in a loved one. Letting your doctor know about these changes can help him or her decide if hospice could help you and your family.

If you or your loved one have the following, contact your physician to discuss possible hospice services:

- Progressive decline in status despite curative measures
- Frequent hospitalizations in the past six months
- Repeat or multiple infections
- Increased or uncontrolled pain
- Progressive or profound weakness and fatigue
- Shortness of breath
- Difficulty swallowing
- Continued weight loss
